We thank you for heeding the directions in the parking lot at HJH upon dismissal. Our Knights of Columbus are helping with this important task to keep our children safe.

All Saints Day

November 1st is the feast of All Saint's.

This is a day when we remember the saints that are living with God. On Sunday, October 19th, Pope Leo XIV canonized seven new saints from around the world. Here are our newest saints: St. Ignatius Maloyan, St. Peter To Rot, St. Maria Troncatti, St. Vincenza Maria Poloni, St. Bartolo Longo, St. Jose Gregorio Hernandez, and St. Carmen Rendiles.

Pope Leo said of these newly canonized saints: "We see all this faith in the lives of these new saints, They are not heroes or champions of some ideal, but authentic men and women."

On September 7th, Pope Leo canonized St. Carlo Acutis and St. Piere Giorgio Frassati. Let us remember our newly canonized saints, and remember Pope Leo's words-they are authentic men and women.

All Souls Day

November 2nd is the commemoration of all The Faithful Departed-All Soul's Day.

While death separates us from our loved ones, we know the separation is only for a short time. We are united with them in the Communion of Saints. During the entire month of November, we remember our faithful departed and recall that they can intercede on our behalf.

VOCATIONS OFFICE

How to Support Your Priests

Parishioners can encourage the priesthood by praying daily for vocations and for priests, by encouraging men they know to consider the priesthood, and by actively supporting the church's vocation ministry. Encouraging a priestly vocation includes recognizing spiritual commitment, such as regular participation in prayer and spiritual events, and speaking to potential candidates to offer support and invite them to explore the possibility of a vocation. A supportive community that fosters openness to God's call is crucial for men and women to discern and respond to a vocation to the priesthood or religious life.

The Propaedeutic and Discipleship Stages

BY FR. STEVEN BORELLO
DIRECTOR OF VOCATIONS

A man's formation for priesthood takes place over the course of four stages. The first of these is the Propaedeutic Stage, a year of preparation before diving into academic work. During this year, the seminarian takes time to build a solid foundation in prayer, Scripture, catechesis and community. It is a season of deepening conversion where one learns to live a Christian rhythm of life. The goal is simple: to help a man center his life on Christ.

Upon completion of the Propaedeutic Stage, a man begins the Discipleship Stage, during which a man begins the study of philosophy. Concurrently, the seminarian deepens his understanding and witness as a follower of Jesus in daily life. He grows in virtue, learns self-discipline, and gains a broad understanding of the human person and the world through his studies. It is a time of becoming a "disciple in heart and mind."

Together, these two stages foster the necessary interior and exterior freedom to hear and respond to the call to the priesthood. Without a firm spiritual foundation built on the habits of a true disciple, later formation would lack stability. The priesthood is not a job one takes up but a calling one receives—and the earliest stages are about preparing the soil so that the Lord's call can take root and flourish.

This is Part 2 in a 3-part series of columns on the importance of your help in the formation of new priests

ABOUT FATHER BORELLO

Fr. Steven Borello is a priest of the Diocese of Joliet currently serving as the Director of Vocations.

Fr. Steven grew up in Glen Ellyn, Illinois, and is the oldest of 4 children.

He attended the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana where he studied chemistry and chemical engineering.

While there, he received a call to the seminary to discern the priesthood.

He received his Bachelors in Theology and Masters of Divinity from Mundelein Seminary and was ordained a priest for the Diocese of Joliet in 2011.

He first served as an associate pastor at Notre Dame Parish in Clarendon Hills and was then transferred to Saints Peter and Paul Parish in Naperville in June of 2014.

In August of 2015, he began serving at St. John Vianney College Seminary as a spiritual director, director of human formation, and instructor to over 120 men discerning a priestly vocation.

He returned to the Diocese of Joliet in August 2018 to begin as the Director of Vocations.

This week's column is an abridged reflection for the Solemnity of All Saints and the Commemoration of All Souls. The full essay, "From Desolation to Communion," is available on my Substack.

Hidden Heroism: Saints Who Show Us the Way

Consider St. Gianna Beretta Molla, a physician, wife, and mother. She lived an ordinary life—by the world's standards—but made extraordinary choices. When faced with a high-risk pregnancy that threatened her life, she refused abortion or radical procedures that would have taken her child's life to save her own. Her decision was not one of recklessness but of reverent clarity. She told her doctors, "If you must decide between me and the child, do not hesitate: choose the child." She died shortly after giving birth to her daughter, Gianna Emanuela, in 1962.

Gianna did not seek death. She loved life in all its dimensions. But she understood that sanctity is not measured by how long we live, but by how deeply we love. Her quiet courage and maternal sacrifice became a witness to the sanctity of life—not just biologically, but spiritually: life as a gift, life as an offering.

Another mother, nearly fifty years later, would walk a similar path. Blessed Chiara Corbella Petrillo, born in 1984, was also a wife and physician. Her first two children were diagnosed in the womb with fatal conditions, and she carried each to term, loving them for as long as she was given. When she became pregnant a third time, she was diagnosed with cancer. When offered treatment that might have harmed her unborn son, she delayed it. She lived long enough to give birth to Francesco, then entered into a slow and peaceful death in 2012, at the age of 28.

Chiara wrote shortly before her death: "God has given us this time to prepare ourselves well... What matters is to do His will." Her face, in photos from her final weeks, is thin and luminous—an image of a woman who suffered, yes, but also radiated peace that the world cannot give.

They bore suffering not as a cosmic cruelty to endure, but as a sacred trust to offer. And in the offering, they bore witness to a truth deeper than despair: that love is stronger than death, and meaning is not something we invent, but Someone we receive.

They are not anomalies. They are part of the great cloud of witnesses. Their stories echo the hidden struggles of so many faithful souls who will never be canonized but are no less known to God. In their lives, the stone does not endlessly roll back down the hill. It is lifted—not by human strength, but by grace.

They do not make meaning. They bear it.

The Saints Are Realists, Not Escapists

The saints are realists, not escapists. They did not drift above suffering or retreat into illusion. Many of them faced circumstances that left little choice but despair—and yet they refused it. They looked directly into the darkness and discovered God waiting there.

Some endured deep interior torment. St. Dymphna, patron saint of those suffering from mental illness, fled her home to escape her father's violence and was eventually martyred for her refusal to betray her conscience. St. Benedict Joseph Labre wandered the streets of Rome in poverty, misunderstood and often mocked, his mind fragile but his faith steadfast. His sanctity was not in triumph, but in trust—a man with no home, no recognition, and no earthly consolation, yet utterly consumed by love for Christ in the Eucharist.

Others deliberately chose the harder path when comfort was within reach. St. Francis of Assisi, born into wealth, abandoned it all for the poverty of the Gospel. He did not escape reality—he entered into it fully, trading privilege for dependence, vanity for humility, and discovering in that descent a freedom the world could never buy.

Even those whose contemporaries recognized their holiness wrestled with silence and doubt. St. John of the Cross, in the depths of imprisonment and abandonment, gave us The Dark Night of the Soul—a poetic map of divine hiddenness. St. Teresa of Calcutta, revered by millions, wrote privately of her decades-long struggle to feel God's presence: "In my soul I feel just that terrible pain of loss, of God not wanting me." Yet she continued to serve the poorest of the poor, her faith purified in the fire of divine absence.

These men and women did not deny reality—they entered it more deeply than most of us dare. They remind us that holiness is not an escape from the human condition, but its transfiguration. Their lives bear witness to the paradox of the Cross: that love is revealed most clearly where hope seems least likely.

Their witness leaves us both challenged and consoled: challenged by St. Teresa of Calcutta's exhortation to "Do small things with great love," and comforted by St. Joan of Arc's courage, "I am not afraid; I was born to do this."

This weekend, as we commemorate All Saints and All Souls, the Church reminds us that the climb is not meaningless and the summit is not imaginary. We are surrounded by those who have gone before us, and we are entrusted with those still on the way. The saints do not stand in contrast to our condition—they complete it. They show us that struggle can become sacrifice, that silence can become sanctuary, and that repetition, when offered in love, becomes prayer.

We do not need to imagine them happy. We know they are.
